

Miller Asserts Gov. Smith Is Dodging Issues

Declares He Hides Behind Social Welfare Plans; Judge Answers Charge Questioning Knowledge

Wrote Court Decision Author of Opinion Upholding Compensation Act; Gives First Principles

From a Staff Correspondent
BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 15 (On board the Miller campaign special).— Making stops at six agricultural centers and one college town, on the way to this city from Utica to-day, Judge Nathan L. Miller continued hammering away at Governor Smith for dodging behind the social welfare program to escape discussing the real issues of the campaign.

Large crowds greeted the Republican nominee at all points, the largest of them gathering here to-night when he spoke at the high school auditorium. The audience was composed largely of workers from the big shoe plant at Johnson City, on the outskirts of the town.

Judge Miller answered Governor Smith's charge that he does not understand the subject of social welfare and labor legislation by replying that it was he, who, as judge of the Court of Appeals, wrote the decision of the highest court of the state sustaining the validity of the workmen's compensation act.

"And I think that my study of that subject and my actual experience in the application of that law in connection with the industries with which I am associated may have given me as much knowledge of the subject as even the Governor himself possesses."

Challenges Smith on Promise

The candidate called attention to Governor Smith's promise to do away with delays occurring in the settlement of claims of injured workmen and the families of those who have been killed while engaged in hazardous occupations.

"And I now call upon the Governor to explain why he has failed to redeem that promise," said Judge Miller. "You men and women of Binghamton know all about social welfare," he continued. "This is a good place to discuss it. You have a practical demonstration of it at Johnson City."

"The Governor thinks that as member of the Assembly for ten years he has had an opportunity to learn all there is to be known on this subject. He asserts that I am a court for a corporation, and therefore approach these questions from the wrong angle. Well, I wonder if the men and women of Johnson City think that the President even of a great corporation is qualified to deal with social welfare. I wonder if they think that a member of Assembly or a Governor even knows as much about the great subject of industrial relations of George F. Johnson knows."

Student of Welfare Before Smith

"I am the counsel of a manufacturing corporation which studied the subject of social welfare and industrial welfare before Governor Smith was ever a member of the Legislature. That corporation deals with the problem as George F. Johnson deals with it, as a human problem, on the basis of giving the man his just due on the basis of according justice and the square deal."

"Now, the Governor wants to discuss his social welfare program, consisting of three proposals: Compulsory health insurance, eight-hour law for women and children, and the minimum wage law for women and children. He has dropped the compulsory health insurance and the eight-hour law for women and children. Yet he urged it upon the Legislature as strenuously as he did either of the other proposals."

Judge Miller warned against the League of Nations, and pleaded for the election of Harding and Coolidge.

Before coming here Judge Miller spoke at Clinton, Hamilton, Earlville, Sherbourne, Norwich, Oxford and Greene. His staff of speakers includes Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, Leew Whitney, Miss Agnes Lunt, and Jeremiah Wood, and Elton H. Hooker who joined the party at Binghamton this morning. At tonight's meeting Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell, spoke on the League of Nations and Congressman William H. Hall presided.

Police Retake Ex-Soldier After He Flees From Hospital

Patrolman Hagerman ran through the streets of Rockville Center, L. I., yesterday driving his revolver as he pursued Frank O'Callahan, a former soldier, who had escaped from King's Park Hospital, where he was being treated for mental disorders resulting from shell shock and gassing.

Another patrolman and four hospital attendants joined in the pursuit of the veteran, but fired no shots. After Hagerman had fired several times, the fugitive halted and was taken back to the hospital. He had not away from the four attendants who had found him in his home in the village.

Nabel O'Callahan, the ex-soldier's sister, was decorated by the French government for the services she rendered overseas during the war.

Crowds Cry 'Give Us Teddy' On State Campaign Trip

Roosevelt, in Getting Votes for Miller, Uses Vigorous and Picturesque Style of His Father

From a Staff Correspondent
UTICA, Oct. 15 (ON BOARD THE MILLER CAMPAIGN SPECIAL).— Theodore Roosevelt is the big hit of Judge Miller's campaign trip—next to the Republican nominee for Governor himself. This was shown at the little village of Dekalb Wednesday, where the entire population gathered round the rear end of the train. After Judge Miller, Senator Fred Davenport and Secretary of State Hugo had spoken, the train started to pull out.

"Teddy, Teddy, give us Teddy," roared the crowd, the more agile of them running after the train still shouting for the son of the late Colonel.

He is, as Judge Miller has said, a chip off the old block. His style of campaigning is not unlike the vigorous and picturesque style of the Colonel.

On the way here the train stopped at Palaski. Teddy, on being introduced by one of the local leaders, began by telling how he just finished campaigning in twenty states. Asked by the chief of the Republican national headquarters what he thought the people of the country were thinking about politically, Roosevelt said:

"I told them the best way I could give them an idea was to illustrate by a story: A mountain boy in Kentucky came down to town and went into the restaurant, one of those railroad restaurants, and the young lady who was in attendance there wished up to him, put down some food, and wished off again, the way they do. About ten minutes afterward she came back again and said: 'Brother, would you like some more tea or coffee?' He said, with his slow mountain drawl: 'Mam, if this here stuff in this here cup is any good, I'll have some more of it; but if it's any good, I'm bound to have a change.'"

Makes a Hit With Crowd

When the crowd laughed Roosevelt grinned broadly and shook his soft brown hair, which he held clenched in his right hand, good naturedly at the villagers.

"Now, friends," he continued, "that is what we are thinking about."

Then, waving his hand toward Judge Miller, Teddy exclaimed:

"The judge is a coming fine man and deserves the heartfelt support of every one of us."

He lie into Governor Smith and Charles F. Murphy and Governor C. and Tammany Hall in true Rooseveltian fashion.

"Now, friends," said Teddy, "don't let anybody fool you by telling you that the Democratic party in this state and the Democratic party in the nation are two entirely different things; they are not. Mr. Cox and Governor Smith are the Sumner twins. Who is responsible for Governor Cox's nomination in San Francisco more than anybody else? Mr. Murphy, of Tammany Hall."

"Who is responsible for Governor Smith's nomination? Mr. Murphy, of Tammany Hall. Mr. Murphy is the power house and the other two are the shining stations and they are just as closely connected as that."

The crowd howled with delight at this. Again Roosevelt grinned the Roosevelt grin and shook his hat at the crowd. Then he continued:

"Now, another thought: On the same line, don't let any one fool you by telling you this year to vote for individualism. It is not the individual that counts. It is the group party for which that individual stands. To give you an illustration: I guess a good many of you here, like myself, are married."

The crowd laughed, a little girl about six longer than the rest.

"Ah, there's a lovely little child," exclaimed Teddy. "You know a very confidential thing—'I have four of them myself.'"

Marrying the Whole Family

Then he returned to his argument, saying: "If you do not agree with what I am going to say, I just want you to rise up on your hind legs and say so. I am an individual married, that individual, not simply the girl or the man, but in addition to that girl or that man the family as well."

Two young farmers laughed heartily at this. Roosevelt added: "I see some of you agree with me," and then he continued:

"Now, if you vote for a Democrat you vote to return the Democratic political family to power. Do you want to marry a political family which has in this state as its godfather Mr. Murphy of Tammany Hall? Do you want to marry a political family which has for a motto over the door of its house that thoroughly un-American League of Nations? I can answer—no, we are not going to."

"You bet we won't," shouted a Civil War veteran who wore the little bronze button of the American Legion.

"Hello," exclaimed Roosevelt, pointing toward the veteran. "You are a G. A. R. man. I see that glorious old button. The issue is just the plain, old-fashioned Americanism that the men of the Grand Army of the Republic fought for way back in the sixties. Now we must fight to retain to-day, and we must all go outly November to see that no one interferes with it. Go to the polls and return a clean sweep for Harding, Coolidge, Miller, Wadsworth—the Republican party, America free and America first. Go to it now."

Swann Declares Garver Sought Aid in Gas Suit

District Attorney Differs With Bar Official in Version of Latter's Visit

District Attorney Edward Swann yesterday took issue with John A. Garver, vice-president of the Bar Association, over the latter's explanation of his call upon Mr. Swann in relation to the gas suit.

Mr. Garver had said he called on the District Attorney merely to advise with him.

"Mr. Garver," said Mr. Swann, called to see me on behalf of his client, the gas combine, on the day that my staff was held and wanted me to let it go by default. I informed him that I had already ordered the answer to be served. He thereupon asked me to withdraw the answer and I refused to do so."

"Now he says he called in order to advise with me as to what Assistant District Attorney should officially represent the office in the action. I had never seen Mr. Garver before. It seems to me incredible that any same person could believe Mr. Garver's statement that he called on me merely to advise with me on a matter in which I had been made the defendant by him."

"His advice was very much in the nature of a threat. It was given for the sole purpose of inducing me to tender it as easy as possible for the gas combine to set aside the 50-cent gas law and charge the public what ever the traffic would bear."

"From Mr. Garver's angle of vision a public official who does not yield to 'advice' from one of the great public utility combines that have heretofore been the directing force behind former local governments of this city should not be approved by a committee composed solely of the private counsel of those combines."

H., came in at the head of the string. They were followed half an hour later by Bunkie and Mile. Denise, Army Remount Service grade thoroughbreds. # Coolidge Urges U. S. Return to Commonplace

People Ultimate Arbiters of Own Fortunes, He Says, in Opening Tour With Address in Philadelphia

Sproul Assails Wilson

Pennsylvania's Governor Calls "He Kept Us Out of War" Unforgettable Crime

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—An appeal for a return to the commonplace in America was made here to-night by Governor Coolidge in the opening address of a tour which will take him into several border and Southern states in the next week. "When my countrymen turn their attention again to the commonplace," he said, "I shall know that American institutions are secure. I want to see the gospel of the Republican party continue to be the sound, the good, the wholesome commonplace."

The Republican Vice-Presidential candidate was given an enthusiastic reception at the Academy of Music, where the address was delivered. His appearance on the platform was the signal for a demonstration, in which were mingled Amherst College cheers by a number of his fellow alumni. Other speakers were Governor William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania and Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas. Former Governor Edwin S. Stuart, who is president of the Union League, under whose auspices the meeting was held, presided.

People Arbiters of Own Fortune

"It is the part of government to assist in our economic development in every way it can successfully assist," Governor Coolidge said. "It must always insist on even-handed justice. But what I am urging is for the people to realize that they are the ultimate arbiters of their own fortune."

The Democratic Administration was attacked for alleged waste and inefficiency by Governor Sproul, who said that "the unforgettable crime of the ages was the 'he kept us out of war' campaign of 1916, which cost us thousands of American lives, infinite suffering and the loss of billions of wasted dollars."

He also condemned the League of Nations, saying "the new plan for 'keeping us out of war' is even more dangerous than the last one."

The Republican party goes into this national contest with clean hands," he added. "No opposition party in the history of this or any other nation passed through a great national crisis with more credit."

Inefficient, Allen Charges.
Governor Allen also charged the Administration with inefficiency, and as an example said that when he was in Washington ten months ago "there were more civilian employees in the War Department than soldiers in the army."

The Administration, he said, had applied business policies during the war that had created the idea on the part of labor that the thing to strive for was not perfection in production, but more pay for less hours.

Governor Coolidge arrived here late to-day from New York, where he conferred with party leaders before entering upon his tour. He will go to Washington to-morrow, where he is expected to confer with other leaders, and on Sunday will board a special train for the speaking trip which will take him into six border and Southern states.

New England Republican Declares Gov. Coolidge

Party Also Has Good Chance of Carrying Maryland, Kentucky and Tennessee, He Says

Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts told newspaper men at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday that Massachusetts and the other New England states are in first-class condition politically and that the Republicans will carry all of them. He also thinks that the Republicans will carry Boston. Outside of New England, he believes the Republicans stand a good chance of carrying Maryland, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Before leaving for Philadelphia, where last night he addressed a mass meeting, the Vice-Presidential nominee conferred with Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, A. T. Hertz, John W. Weeks, former United States Senator from Massachusetts, and Senator Calder. He was accompanied to Philadelphia by Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, Job E. Hedges and James B. Reynolds, former secretary of the National Committee.

"I have spoken recently to many Democrats in Massachusetts and nearly all of them expressed their determination to vote the Republican ticket," he said. "The voters in Massachusetts seem to be tired of the Democratic Administration. There is a deep rooted feeling that the Democratic Administration has failed."

Governor Coolidge said he had not received Franklin D. Roosevelt's challenge to a joint debate. He said he did not believe in that sort of campaigning. When one of the reporters suggested that there were many who would have preferred the ticket with him at the head, he said: "That's compliments. Indeed, but Senator Harding is a good man."

Fayolle Sails for Havre

General Says He Enjoyed Every Minute of His Stay

General Marie Emile Fayolle, of the French army, who was designated by France to represent the nation at the convention of the American Legion in Cleveland, sailed for Havre yesterday on the French liner La Lorraine. General Robert Lee Bullard, U. S. A., and his staff from Fort Jay were at the pier to bid the general bon voyage. General Bullard, who had fought beside General Fayolle in France, received him on his arrival here several weeks ago.

Through his aid, Colonel Edouard Requin, the French general said that he had enjoyed every minute of his stay in America and that he was overwhelmed with the hospitality accorded him by the American people. He urged that France and America and their allies stand together, regardless of whatever differences of opinion might arise on world problems.

"What You Eat Today Walks and Talks Tomorrow"

THIS, as near as we remember, is what a great physician once said to his patients, to stimulate thought in the selection of foods. Think of it; what you eat today is the real you of tomorrow.

Eating is something more than a gastro-nomic picnic. It largely determines your efficiency. It has a definite influence on the formation of character. The world is spotted with "grouches" who are living testimonials to the evils of a one-sided diet. The liberal and intelligent use of Sheffield Milk would probably make most of them useful and agreeable members of society.

If you would try a quart of milk a day for a month see believe you would say at the end of that time that it was the best investment you ever made.

Orange Likes Women Jurors

Again Called to Decide if Man Must Pay Wife's Debts

So well did the jury of women, who tried the case of the McCall Pattern Company against Antonio Pascarella at Orange, N. J., this week, perform their duty that another feminine jury will be impelled by Sergeant at Arms Gallagher, of the District Court at Orange, to try another case bearing upon the same issue, it was announced yesterday. The first case related to the execution of a judgment obtained by the McCall Pattern Company against Pascarella's wife, Mrs. Antoinette Pascarella. The jury decided that Pascarella's property could not be sold in satisfaction of the judgment against his wife.

The new jury will have to decide on whether or not Pascarella should be held liable for the debt incurred by his wife. The McCall company began suit against Pascarella yesterday. The new jury will be summoned on Monday and the case will be tried on Wednesday before Judge Daniel A. Dugan, before whom the first case was heard, when for the first time in the history of New Jersey a jury composed exclusively of women was called upon to render a verdict.

Polling 600,000 Voters In Six Pivotal States

In this week's LITERARY DIGEST the first instalment of THE DIGEST'S poll of 600,000 voters in the six big doubtful states of New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and California is published. These votes have been polled from all classes of voters with entire impartiality, and the results of the poll are extremely interesting because the electoral votes of these six states total 140, or more than half of the 266 votes necessary for a choice by the electoral college.

The article accompanying the tabulation brings out many interesting sidelights on the political situation this year. This week's number of THE DIGEST will be read and studied with unusual interest by men and women of all political faiths.
